Oil Company Water Well Permitting

In 2009, the Colorado Supreme Court upheld a lower court ruling that concluded that the removal of groundwater to liberate natural gas was a beneficial use. The result of the ruling was that permitted gas wells that removed groundwater needed to also be permitted as water supply wells. Several oil and gas companies asked WWE to assist with the permitting process.

Since 2009, WWE has assisted numerous oil and clients with the permitting of several thousand gas wells as water supply wells through the Division of Water Resources.
